104 BOY SCOUTS ARE DOING VOLUNTEER BLACKOUT SERVICE

When help is needed in carrying out the assigned duties during a blackout test, the Boy Scouts can be found on the job and at the present time a total of 104 Scouts are contributing to this patriotic effort. A number of the Scouts have been re-assigned to cover some of the vacancies in the various posts, and a number of scouts have been assigned to the Emergency Service Corps. Scouts who are 15 years or older, are assigned as senior messengers and Scouts under the 15-year age limit are junior messengers.

The following Scouts are in the Emergency Service Corps: Troop 2, American Legion-Joseph LaBella, James Van Vorst, Nichola Carlucci, William Armstrong, Thomas Velz, Louis Curcio Troop 9, St. John's-William Barber, Horace Rundell.

Boy Scouts, during blackouts, have the important duty of relaying messages from post to post and to the main defense stations, and in the past tests the Scouts have been doing their work faithfully and efficiently, winning the praise of the defense authorities.
